

I found it to be very challenging to choose a piece of evidence that effectively demonstrates that I am an honest and ethical person for this standard. I feel that someone can act ethically and demonstrate ethical behaviour everyday although the challenge comes with measuring and quantifying such characteristic. I feel that I am a very black and white person who needs things to be concrete in order for me to be able to understand and grasp. Due to this I choose to use the BCTF Code of ethics because I feel that they are laid out in such a way that is simple and concrete to understand. I find myself identifying to the idea of laying things down on paper in order to better understand something has complicated and hard to prove as ethics. I often find myself being able to recognize things that are and aren't ethical, but when it comes to determining and proving why it is or isn't, I am raised with a challenge. I feel that I have been living with my own code of ethics my whole life, which has been a guide in my daily life decisions and actions. This code I feel fits nicely with the BCTF Code of Ethics and ultimately at the end of the day I aim to treat others the way I would like to be treated. I see myself as being the person who is always willing to help those in need whether it being emotionally or physically. I am the type of person who aims to see people be successful in their own way. Through this past year and a half I have come to the realization that one of my passions that drives my teaching is my passion for helping people thrive and grow in their own unique way.
