

I have chose the self assessment that I have created as a closure for my light and sound unit as a piece of evidence for this particular standard. I believe that assessment has to be fair, equal and provide an opportunity for students to grow and develop their learning. Self evaluations are a tool that would be great for providing students with an opportunity to reflect on their learning. I also feel that it is my job as an educator to keep in mind assessment for, as and of learning strategies when developing ways to assess students. As well, I feel that it is important to give the students an opportunity to be a part of the assessment process. From this experience I have learnt the importance of checking in with students throughout lessons and using assessment to inform my practice. Self evaluations are great to determine where both teachers and students believe the students are at as well as determining goals for students.
